Awning Windows

Hinged on the top of the window, awnings tilt out to allow for ventilation even during bad weather. They make an ideal accent above or below a picture window and are a great way to let the fresh air in.

Most people use a combination of Awnings and casements throughout their home, allowing varied ventilation in different rooms. The hinging of a venting window can be a factor in the window configuration, and therefore venting window can be a factor in the window configuration, and therefore the home appearance.

Bay & Bow Windows

Add space, light and viewing area to your rooms—just by installing a replacement bow or bay window. They're built so well they'll last a lifetime and require practically no maintenance, but above all, they give your home a completely new look that can only be described as beautiful.

The addition of a Bay or Bow window creates a dynamic new dimension to a room. This is a lovely way to open your home to the outdoors. And gives you the option available when you replace your old windows.

Casement Windows

Graceful styling and high-tech engineering make casements a popular choice. Jamb hinges allow the window to completely open outward for maximum ventilation and possible egress.

The casement is a beautifully designed window that adds elegance and charm to today's modern homes. It's your best choice for large unobstructed view and for maximum ventilation. Casement windows are best known for their weather tightness and operating ease.

Double Hung Windows

Double-hung windows differ from single-hung windows due to the fact that both sashes are moveable. In addition, both sashes tilt for easy cleaning.

Because they open up instead of out, double-hung windows don't take up exterior space when open. This makes them ideal for areas like adjoining walkways, porches, patios and other high traffic areas. Double-hung windows look best in more traditional architectural styles such as French, Colonial, Craftsman, Shingle and Victorian.

Double Slider Windows

The double slider tilt is the best choice for areas that require maximum ventilation. It features the insta-lock shoe that allows the sashes to slide along the full length of the window effortlessly.

The best feature of the insta-lock shoe is that it prevents any movement of your sashes while you're cleaning or just letting in fresh air. This window comes with a full-length screen.

Single Hung Windows

This is the economical version of the double hung. This window has the same features as the double hung, except that only one sash operates and it comes with a half screen.

Classic styling and engineering make the Single Hung window an excellent choice for your window needs. Add in the bonus of reduced energy costs, which comes with this improved version of an old favorite, and you will be pleased with this window's performance. The single sash tilts in for quick and easy cleaning and stays in place because we designed it that way for you.

Single Slider Windows

Single Slider window features one fixed lite and a single operating sash that tilts in or lifts out for easy cleaning.

This is the economical version of the double slider. This window has the same features as the double slider, except that only one sash operates and it comes with a half screen.
